

A naturalistic scheme by Jo Thompson, whose new book The New Romantic showcases her typically painterly approach to planting (‘Planting stories’, August 3, 2022). Miss Thompson’s latest book, The New Romantic Garden (Rizzoli), has just been published, and she will return to RHS Chelsea this year with a garden for The Glasshouse, a social enterprise that provides second chances through horticulture.

020–7127 8438;
www.jothompson-garden-design.co.uk

Kim Wilkie
Strategic and conceptual landscape architect Kim Wilkie is admired for sculpting the land, creating calm, green geometric patterns on a large scale, often in historic settings, including Orpheus, the inverted pyramid at Boughton, Northamptonshire, a sculpture garden at Dulwich Picture Gallery, London SE21, and a long-term masterplan for Kew at Wakehurst Place in West Sussex.
07768 874089; www.kimwilkie.com

Lloyd Brunt Outdoor Design
Graham Lloyd-Brunt is well known for his timeless designs, each of which is given a modern twist to make it suitable for today’s lifestyles, as evidenced at Pembury Hall in Kent (‘New for old’, February 28, 2024). He is expert at making sense of awkward sites, too, and creating gardens that seem as if they have always been there.

‘Her classic, eclectic style combines antiques and fine art with a sense of comfort and personality’

www.lloydbrunt.com

Lutyens & FitzGerald Landscape Design
Garden designer Catherine FitzGerald and landscape architect Mark Lutyens head a small practice, Lutyens & FitzGerald, specialising in designing new gardens and restoring historic ones, in Britain and Ireland. Miss FitzGerald has sensitively transformed the gardens at her family home, Glin Castle, Co Limerick, Ireland (‘Presiding spirits’, August 7, 2024). Other projects include a new garden with an Arts-and-Crafts feel at a restored 18th-century house in the Derbyshire Dales and softening the terrace of a fine

Oxfordshire mansion, by adding a naturalistic gravel garden and restoring the Capability Brown parkland beyond.
07785 330302; <https://lutyensfitzgerald.com>

Marian Boswall Landscape Architects
Leading landscape architect and plantswoman Marian Boswall heads a Kent-based practice with a satellite office in London, working with a focus on regeneration, using local craftspeople and planting with Nature. She is known for work on historic gardens, as well as large-scale regenerative landscapes, currently including the 60-mile-long Chalk to Coast Nature-recovery project in Kent in collaboration with local farmers and landowners. Her new book, The Kindest Garden (Frances Lincoln), is published on April 10.
020–7305 7153; www.marianboswall.com

Mazzullo + Russell Landscape Design
Emma Mazzullo and Libby Russell head a studio that undertakes a wide variety of projects, including large estates, across the UK, Channel Islands and abroad. Projects are beautifully paced and sensitive to their settings with romantic planting, including a new garden, made to feel mature, at a new-build house in the Home Counties (‘Instant gratification’, →